The Swamp Under St. Petersburg. "St. Petersburg was once a swamp," says a recent writer, "and so rotten is the ground that it would be quite possible for a monolith (like the sixty foot columns for St. Isaac's) to sink out of sight and never more be heard of. To provide against such contingencie forest of plies was driven into the earth at the cost of $1,000,000 as the foundation of St. Isaac's, and yet the cathedral sinks. Like causes render the roads of St. Petersburg the worst in Europe. Winter frosts, which pene-trate several feet below the surface. seize on the imprisoned waters and tear up the streets. The surface thus broken is so destructive to wheels that I have known an Englishman who, though he kept four carriages, had not one in a condition to use. The joiting on the roads is so great as to make it wise for a traveler to hold on fast, and when a lady and gentleman ride side by side it is usual for the gentleman to protect the lady by throwing his arm round his companion's waist. This deli-cate attention is so much of a utilitarian necessity as in no way to imply further obligations."

A Deceptive Fish.

A naturalist who is familiar with Ceylon writes: "In the clear water of Colombo harbor it is not uncommon to see fallen and faded leaves of the jak tree floating a short distance be-low the surface or sinking slowly to the bottom. A certain small fish, commonly known as the sea bat, mimics these leaves, both in form and color in order to escape detection. Both in shape and color they look when in the water like waterlogged leaves, but when removed from their native element this resemblance is immediately lost. They float in the water half sideways and all swim in the same direction, turning simultaneously. On one occasion Mr. Willey attempted to capture one of these sea bats in a rock pool and directly he made a plunge with the hand net saw nothing except what he took to be a jak leaf slowly and inertly sink to the bottom. To his astonishment, as he withdrew the net, the supposed lenf righted itself and darted away."

The Danish pensantry have a not-able love of order and symmetry in household arrangement, placing their furniture wherever possible in pairs and in exactly corresponding positions One old peasant who had accumulated a little money and had been prevailed upon to buy his daughter a plano se-riously considered buying another to place against the opposite wall. Their bedsteads consist of great boxes, gen-erally painted red or green and heaped with feather beds, between which they insinuate themselves winter and summer. If unable to afford so many feathers, the underbed is of straw and receives so little attention that mice build their nests in it and race back and forth squealing shrilly with out disturbing the stolid peasant slumbers. The bedding is not washed of-tener than once or twice a year.—London Standard.

Judicious.

Many a true word is spoken quite by accident. There were two middle aged acquaintance on the floor below.
"There's Mrs. Blank," said one.

"Well, I must say that she's done a wise thing for once. No woman ought to go on living with a man that acts like her husuand's done."

"What's she done?" asked the other. "Ain't you heard?" queried the first.
"Why, she's got a judicious separa-tion."—Washington Post.

Bamboo Crab Traps.

A curious use of the bamboo in some islands of the Pacific is as a crab trap. The jointed bamboo is stuck into the ground. Each piece has a little bow half way up, and a string set at tenhalf way up, and a string set at ten-sion to shoot off an arrow, passed through an aperture in the lower part of the cylinder. It is set at the mouth of crap holes and when the crab pro-ceeds to climb up to the upper part of the tube a delicately set hook releases the broad arrow, which closes the low-er aperture and imprisons the crab.

Origin of the Word "Farm."

The origin of the word "farm" is as follows: In the Saxons' time the estates which the lords of manors granted to the freemen were at first but for a term of years, with a render of a rent which in those days was of corn and other produce. The leases so made were called fermes, or farmes, but times ensuing turned the produce into money and terms of years to terms of life and inheritance.

A Very Remarkable Remedy.

"It is with a good deal of pleasure and satisfaction that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Druggist A. W. Sawtelle, of Hartford, Conn. "Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever. For sale by Gibson & Timberman and W. F. Creighton & Co.
